Course Description

This course is an introduction to the wide range of the Buddhist ideas and practices that have developed within the diverse regions of South, Central, and East Asia. The course also introduces students to diverse Buddhist literary and artistic expressions and covers a wide range of Buddhist traditions: Theravāda, Mahāyāna, Vajrayāna, Chan/Zen, Pure Land Buddhism, and so on. It focuses on a variety of pertinent issues: on the historical continuities and discontinuities of Buddhism across Asia, the ways in which the pre-Buddhist ideas shaped the Buddhist tradition in the given geographical areas, and on the social and political conditions that have facilitated ideological and practical changes within various Buddhist traditions.

Course Readings

- Peter Harvey. An Introduction to Buddhism: Teachings, history, and practices. Cambridge, Cambridge University Press.
